So, the main issue for making from aQ: Does Android allow system apps to access phone contacts? I saw this app and I was wondering if the app is tapping on the contacts on the phone which leads to some sort of data security breach or something. The app just keeps checking periodically and adds other contacts if you have any from those you add. Is this safe? A: If the app does not specifically require the access to contacts then the chances are high that it is a system app that is designed to interact with the device and does not request any access to the user's personal information (such as access to contacts or calendar). On the other hand, if it is a contact app, then the chances are high that it does require access to the user's contacts in order to function. In this case, you can assume that the app has been specifically designed to provide the function it is performing. Prevalence and risk factors for common mental disorders in a birth cohort in Hong Kong. Psychological distress is linked to many physical and mental disorders. The pattern of the distribution of psychological distress in a sample of pregnant Chinese women and its associations with various demographic, social, and reproductive variables were examined. The 10-item General Health Questionnaire was used to screen for psychological distress in Chinese women recruited at the
